the Old Testament:
Hannah

Though Hannah had been married for several years, she had not been able to have children. One day, when visiting the temple with her husband, Elkanah, Hannah prayed desperately asking God to give her a baby. She promised God that if He was to give her a baby, she would raise the child to love and serve Him.

Read more about Hannah
in 1 Samuel 1:1–2:10.

Hannah became pregnant and later gave birth to a baby boy, Samuel. As she had promised God, she raised Samuel to love and serve God.

Due to Hannah keeping her promise, Samuel went on to serve God throughout his life. He accomplished many things in God's service, including anointing Israel's first king, Saul, and later anointing Israel's greatest king, David.
