

It Comes Back to You

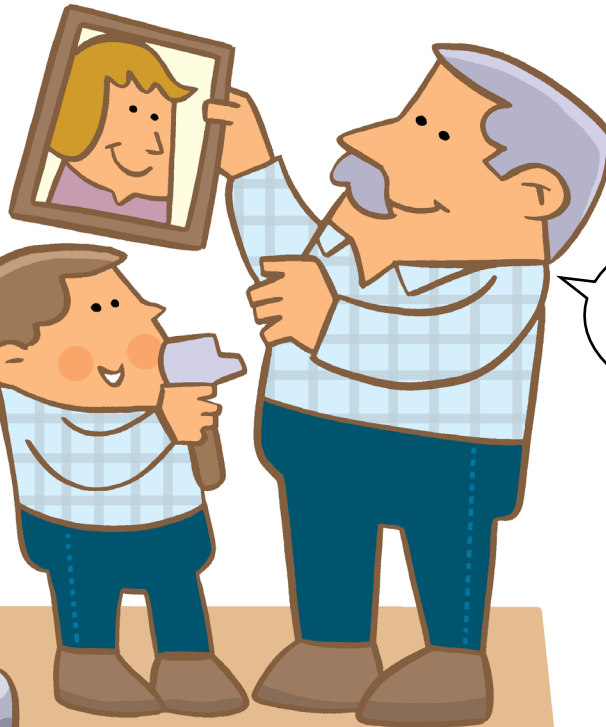

Do you know what the greatest gift is that you could ever give to someone? It's love! Love is the greatest gift in the universe, and when you give love you receive love in return. You never lose when you give love.

Here are a few ideas of ways in which you can give love, and in return you will receive love. Try them!

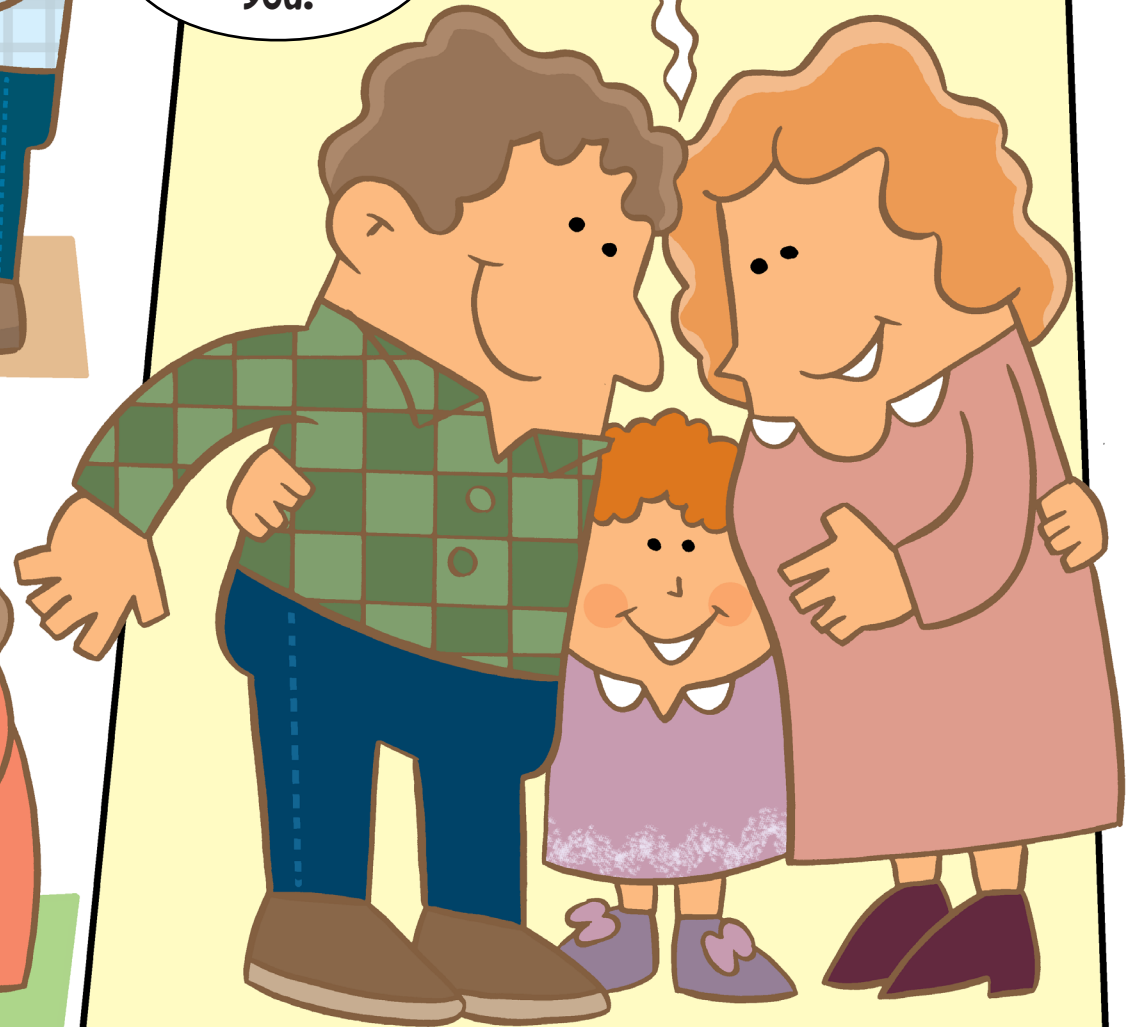

I got the hammer for you, Grandpa.

Meow!

That's helpful, Devin. Thank you.

The next time you see your mommy or daddy, give them a big hug and tell them how thankful you are for how well they care for you.

When you give and share with those around you—your family, your brothers and sisters, and your friends—then you will be happier too!

If you are playing with your friends or brothers and sisters, let them be the first to choose what toy they want to play with and then tell them how much you enjoy playing with them.

It's your turn to choose which toy we play with today.

If someone wants to borrow something of yours...

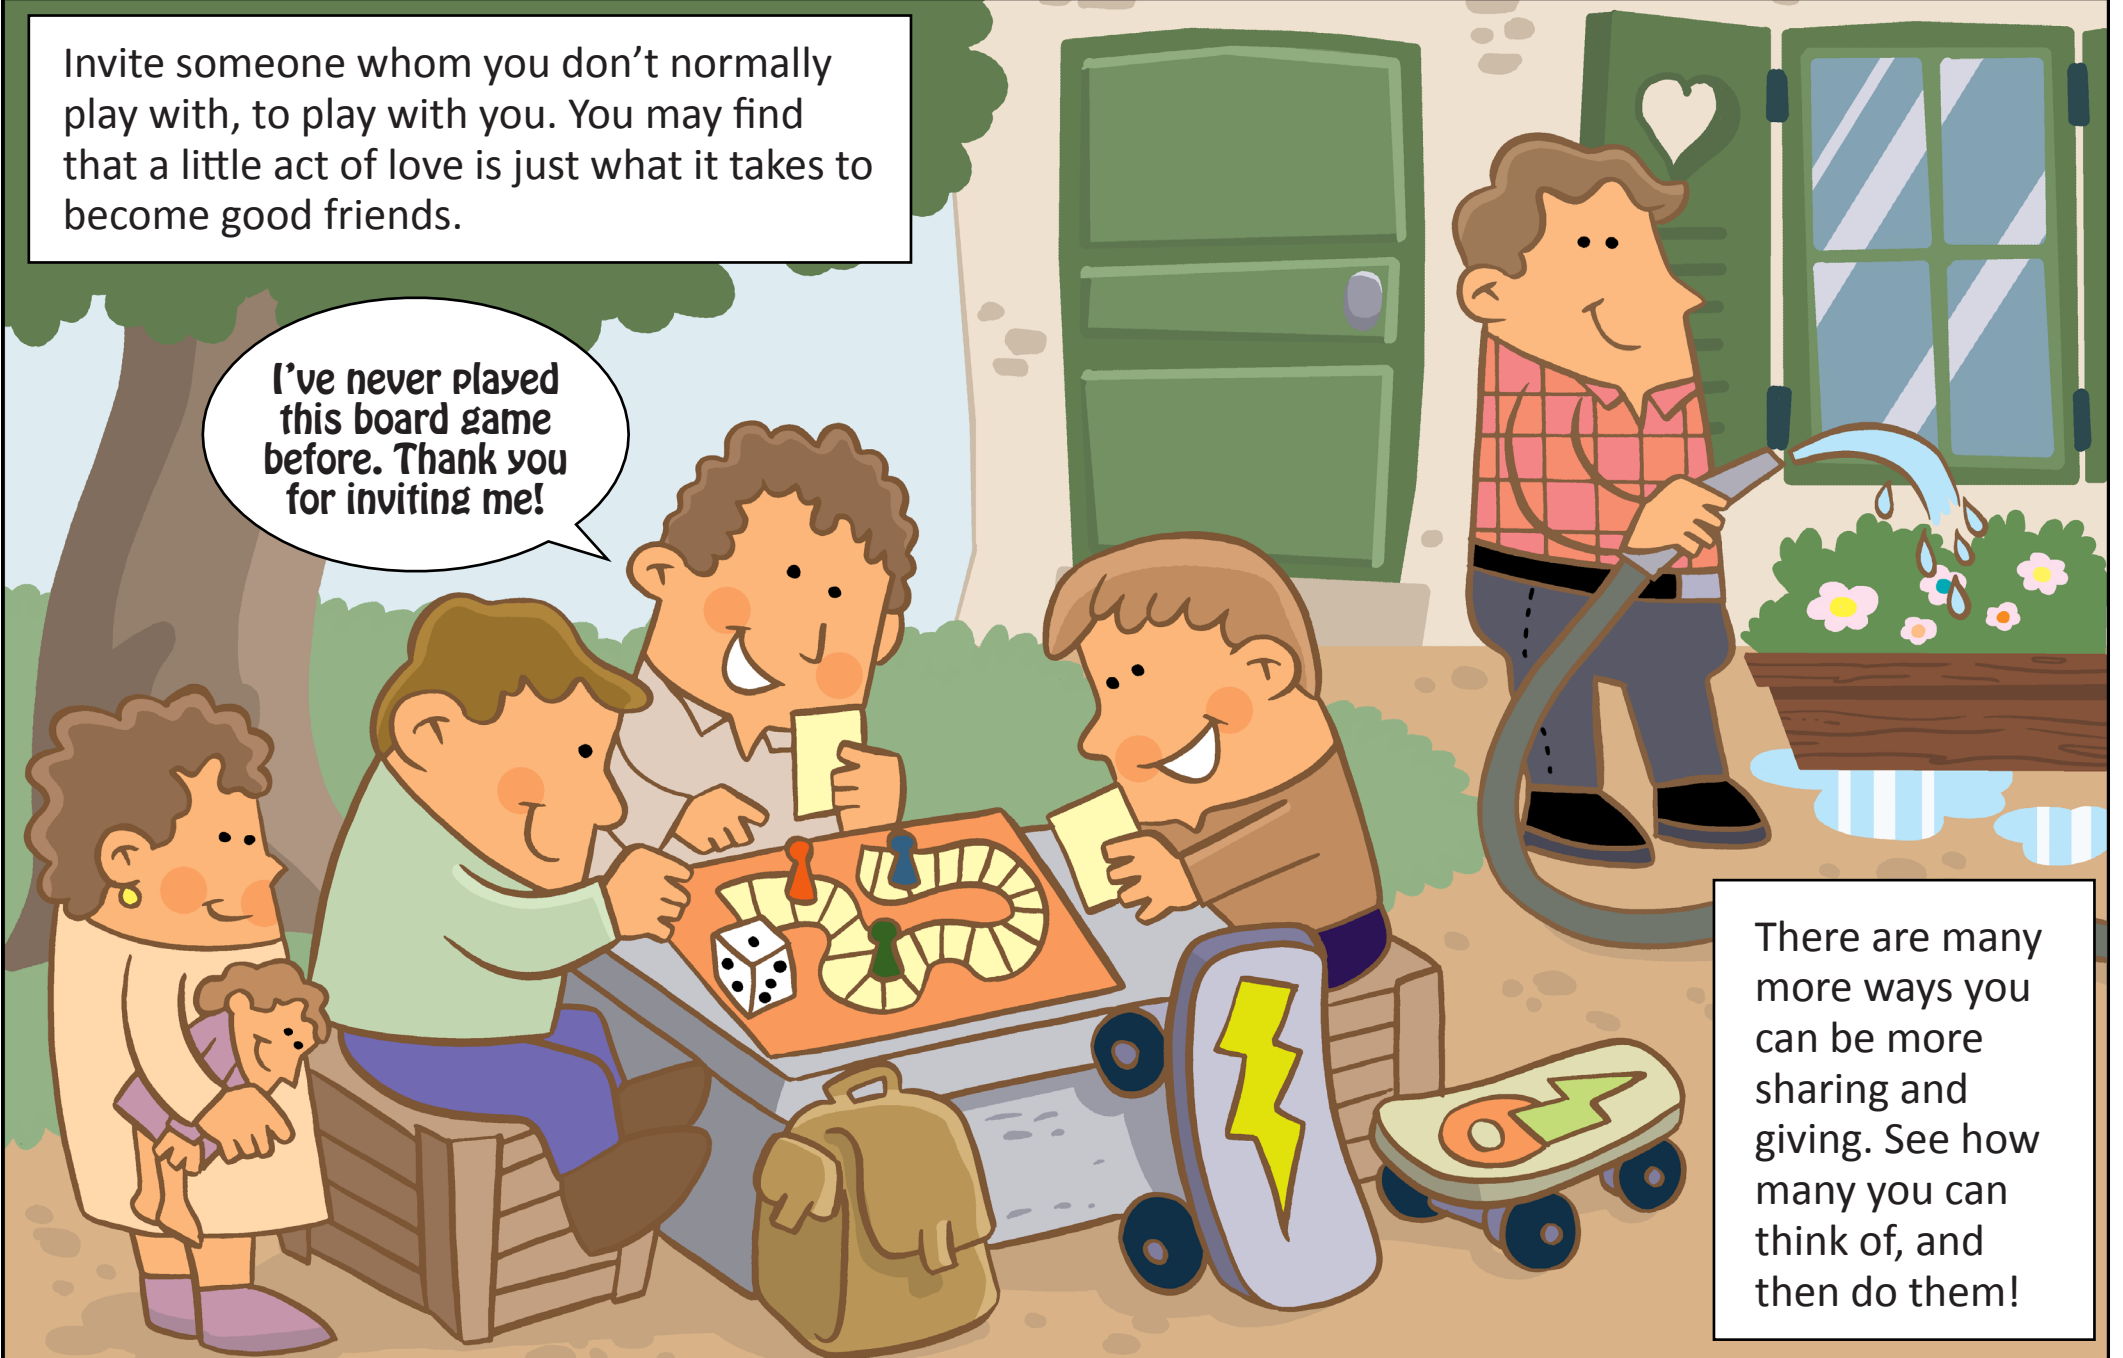

Of course you can borrow my book.

...lend it to them happily, and see how you brighten up their day!

Invite someone whom you don't normally play with, to play with you. You may find that a little act of love is just what it takes to become good friends.

I've never played this board game before. Thank you for inviting me!

There are many more ways you can be more sharing and giving. See how many you can think of, and then do them!
